Chronic stress is the #1 cause of economic loss in organizations because there are huge communications gaps, conflicts due to different values (age, diversity, belief systems, morale), and a lack of priority for emotional well-being of employees and leaders. Brett Francis has worked with companies of all sizes such as Walmart and Netflix and can address your biggest workplace issues and reveal the secrets to building a more successful business. She says that if you're not investing time and resources in your employees' emotional well-being, your organization will struggle with retention, workplace conflict and maximizing team performance.
